A GUIDE

TO THE

QUANTITY OF THE GREEK PENULTIMA,

Chiefly with reference to

ATTIC WRITERS.

PREFACE.

MOST of the treatises, which profess to supply the Student with an adequate knowledge of Greek Quantities, are so imperfect at once and incorrect, that, as far as relates to them, no other apology for any new treatise is required than one immediately afforded by a reference to their errors and defects. Instead of being a faithful guide, there is scarcely one which is not calculated to mislead and perplex[a]. Since however a

[a] The plan of Labbe (we refer to Leedes' Edition) is in itself so unsatisfactory, that even were the present Index not more accurate in its execution than his, it would not have been thought unnecessary. When the Student applies for information as to the quantity of a word, and fails to find it in an Index which professes only to take cognizance of long syllables, he is led to suspect, that the omiswork has already appeared under the best auspices, which seems as correct and as com-sion of the word was not intentional and agreeable to the design of the author, but arose from oversight or ignorance. Labbe's Index however is moreover in itself very imperfect; it is often positively incorrect. Among many errors, for example, he makes the penult long in θαμινος, οχυρος, &c. whilst his omissions in a great variety of instances would mislead; e. g. θακω, θηρατος, θρανιτης, οπλιτης, ανατος, αμηνιτος, αιανος, &c. if we observe his direction, must all make the penult short—κριμα he makes an example of a general rule, and shortens the penult.

In the Port Royal Greek Grammar, which professes to supply us with general rules, as well as an enumeration of individual words, we find only a tissue of mistakes from beginning to end. There is shewn not only an ignorance of the quantity of words in the detail, but a most confused idea of principles. For example; among their general rules we find such as these.

1. " Alpha penult is long before σ in the future of verbs in αω."

2. " Iota is long in the greatest part of the comparatives in ιων, but their neuter is oftener short."—They make no reference at all to the dialect.

3. " I is long before ν; we must however except nouns of matter, as δρυινος, whose feminines, however, make the penult long, as μολυβδινη."

In their index we find the penult made long in φασις, plete (with some exceptions) not only as we could have hoped to find it, but perhaps too as the subject requires, it is thought necessary to state, that the only ground on which the present publication was considered desirable was the great cost of the late edition of Morell's Thesaurus. The student who is desirous of pursuing the subject to any considerable extent is referred to that work. The range of the present work is very limited, professing as it does only to take notice of the quantity of the doubtful penultima. Since however in almost every case reference is made to some poet for authority, the quantity of the other syllables in any word may generally be ascertained without much difficulty.

After it had been determined that some rules would be desirable, if not indispensable, in a manual like the present, it was resolved either to give only those which appeared to admit of no exceptions, or at all events to report; μυσαρος, τριχεφαλος, ερανος, θαμινος, ατιτος, γυνη, νωνυμος, τοιχωρυχος, with other mistakes equally glaring.

enumerate after a general rule all the exceptions which occurred to the recollection.

Note. For the most part words included under rules are omitted in the Index; many however have been inserted, in consequence of some peculiarity in the word itself, or with a desire of drawing attention to a general rule.

On this principle the following rules, it is hoped, may be considered useful.

RULE I.

All syllables formed by Contraction or by Crasis are long, as [b] ακων from αεκων. Æsch. Suppl. 242.

ἱρα from ἱερα.

[b] For references in the case of examples to the rules, and the exceptions, if they are not attached to the rules, see Index.

RULE II.

DERIVATIVES.

Derivatives follow the quantity of the primitives, as θρασυτης from θρασυ.

μηνυτης from μηνυω.

[c] Note. In nouns derived from verbs the quantity of the penult will depend upon the part of the verb from which the noun is formed, as κρισις from κεκρισαι, not κρινω.

πραγος, Æsch. Suppl. 247. from πεπραγα, Herc. Fur. 1347.

νιφας from ενιφον, (second aorist,) not νιφω.

βαφη from εβαφον, not βαπτω.

αφραδης, περιφραδης, &c. from εφραδον, not φραζω.

And so of others.

In the terminations in ασις, ατηρ, ατος, ατη, ατις, from verbs in αω and αομαι, the penultima

[c] This note does not interfere with the question whether the verb was originally derived from the noun, or the noun from the verb.

is long when the α of the verb is preceded by ϱ, ε, ι.

Long.	Short.
ασις, κϱασις from κεϱαω,	δυναμις from δυναμαι.
ατηϱ, ιατηϱ from ιαομαι,	ελατηϱ from ελαυνω.
ατος, οϱατος from οϱαω,	αγηλατος, do.
ατης, θεατης from θεαομαι,	εϱγατης from εϱγαζω.
ατις, γενειατις from γενειαω,	καταιβατις from βαινω.

Note. It would not be correct either here or in the rule for the future to extend this observation to every verb in αω pure. Ομικϱον before αω has not the effect of rendering the penult long. See χνοαοντας, Apoll. ii. 43. χλοαοντας, Nic. Th. 30. &c. ακϱοαω in all its terminations and derivatives makes the penult long.

Note 2. Iota in composition in a word derived from the future is short, as βλαψιφϱων.

καμψιπους[d]. Sept. c. Theb. 797.

[d] In κονιπους, Eccles. 843. the penult is long from the verb κονιω.

Note 3. Upsilon from a noun in υς is short, as ηδυμελης, οξυφρων.

RULE III.

COMPOUND WORDS.

Compound words follow the quantity of the words of which they are compounded, as Ερiμυχος, αθυμος, αφιλος, οξυπους, πυριπνους, εγγυθεν.

Note. Alpha privative is short as in απους, except in some words of more than three syllables, as αθανατος, Nub. 289.

ακαματος, φ. 13. Nub. 284.

(though in ακαμας the antepenult is short, Eurip. Pirith. iii. 1.) Matthiæ's Greek Grammar extends the exception to all words of four (otherwise) short syllables. But this is not the case: e. g. the α privative is short in αλιμενος. Hec. 1010. Αδυνατος, Nub. 1073, &c. Indeed in any case it is lengthened only by a poetical licence propter necessitatem versus—thus the same word αλιμενος makes the α long in Cycl. 349. in Αθανατος probably it is always long.

RULE IV.

INCREMENT OF NOUNS.

The rules usually offered require so many exceptions, that beyond two or three, which seem to be almost universal, it has been thought better to omit them, and to enumerate as many of the most common, or of the most remarkable exceptions to the rules given, as occurred to the recollection.

Note. All other cases follow the genitive, as γιγας, γιγαντος, γιγασι. Herc. Fur. 176. But in those nouns which may be abbreviated by Syncope the dative plural shortens the penult, as ανερος, ανδρος ανδρασι. Hippol. 964.

Note 2. So in participles and adjectives in forming the genitive masculine in αντος the penult is long in all the oblique cases.

ἁπασαν, Heracl. 157.
ὁπλισασα, Ion 980.
πασι, Æsch. Suppl. 381.

Rule 1. Neuter nouns, in α, ι, υ, make the penult in the increment short, as χρημα, χρηματος, χρημασι, Eur. El. 943, 945.

μελι, μελιτος, Bacchæ 667.
δακρυ, δακρυος, δακρυσι, Eur. Suppl. 21.

Rule 2. So neuter nouns in ας and αρ, as ημαρ, ηματος, Pers. 435.

κρεας, κρεατος, Θ. 162.
νεκταρ, νεκταρος, Bacchæ 130.

Except

κερας, κερατος, Bacchæ 919.
[e]στεαρ, στεατος, φ. 178.
φρεαρ, φρεατος[f], Alex.

Rule 3. First, Genitives in ανος, ινος, ιγος, ικος, ιχος, have the penult long, as τιτανος, Iph. T. 215.

πανος, Med. 1163.
παιανος, Alcest. 437.
Γλωχινος, Trach. 684.

[e] See Athenæus.

RULE V.

Derivative verbs in αθω, ιθω, υθω, have the penult short, as αμυναθω, εργαθω, &c. αποφθιθω.

φθινυθω, βαρυθω, &c.

RULE VI.

INCREMENT OF VERBS.

1. The quantity of the penult remains through all the moods of the present and imperfect, as γραφω, Ach. 31.

εγραφον, Ach. 144. } Short.
γραφοιτο, Nub. 757.

κρινω, Bat. 1519.
κρινεις, Plut. 48.
κρινωσιν, Hec. 87.
κρινειν, Equit. 1207.
} Long.

The quantity also remains the same in cognate tenses through the different voices, as φρασω, Hecub. 216.

εφρασα, Cyclops 1002.
εφρασαμην, &c. Cyclops 96.

But in many dissyllables the perfects passive &c. shorten the long penult of the perfect active, as λυσω, Hipp. 781.

λελυκα.
ελυσα, Hel. 1133.
λυσομαι, Eur. Suppl. 344.
} Long.

λελυμαι, Hipp. 198.
λελυσο, Thesm. 1207.
ελυθην, Thesm. 1207.
ελελυτο, Bacchæ 664.
} Short.

Note. The following rule is found in Matthiæ's Grammar, " ι and υ are long before σω in the future, as τινω, τισω, κωλυω, κωλυσω." But the rule is by no means universal, as κυω, κυσω, Bat. 764. Eur. Elect. 574. αρυω, αρυσω, Apol. 3. 114.	Short.

2. Ι and υ are long in the augmented tenses, as αφικου, Ion 319.

3. In the future α preceded by ρ[g], ε, ι, and ρα, are long; and of verbs in ζω, σσω, and ττω, α, ι, υ, in the future are short, as ανιαω, ανιασω, Pac. 763. δραω, δρασω, Hippol. 608. εαω, εασω, Helen 1000. αιτιαω, αιτιασω, Bat. 310. περαω, περασω, Rhesus 117. θεραω, θερασω, Iph. Taur. 1391.	Long.

φραζω, φρασω, Heracl. 543. πλασσω, πλαττω, πλασω, Helen 584. βαδιζω, βαδισω, Bat. 135. ερπυζω, ερπυσω, Bat. 129.	Short.

[g] Κερασω short, but from κεραννυμι, as if from κεραζω. Eccles. 1123.

4. The first aorist follows the future.

αρπασω, ηρπασα, Rhesus 120.
κομισω, εκομισα, Eur. Suppl. 125.		Short.
πτυσω, επτυσα, Agam. 952.

δρασω, εδρασα, Eur. Suppl. 40.
εασω, ειασα, Hippol. 1324.
λυσω, ελυσα, Æsch. Suppl. 949.		Long.
τισω, ετισα, Eurip. Suppl. 743.
φυσω, εφυσα, Ion 4.

But the penult is lengthened before λ, μ, ν, ρ, as τιλω, ετιλα, Lys. 578.

μιανω, εμιανα, Helen 1000.
ρανω, ερανε, Cycl. 40.

And with that view a diphthong, or a long vowel, is often substituted for the short penult of the future, as σφαλω, εσφηλα, Heracl. 127.

σπερω, εσπειρα, Med. 560.
αγγελω, ηγγειλα, Heracl. 54.
τενω, ετεινα, Alcest. 377.
νεμω, ενειμα, Phœn. 1094.

5. The perfect active and passive follow also the future, as φρασω, πεφρακα.		Short.

κτισω, εκτικα.
ανυσω, ηνυκα.
πραξω, πεπραγα[h], Alcestis 977.		Long.
ορασω, εωρακα, Plut. 1045.
βρισω, βεβριθα, Eur. Elec. 305.
φυσω, πεφυκα, Alcest. 657.
δρασω, δεδραχα, Cyclops 695.
δεδρακα, Ran. 1472.

But some dissyllables in υω shorten the υ in the perfect passive, as θυσω, τεθυκα, τεθυμαι[i].

λυσω, λελυκα[k], λελυμαι.

In those verbs the penult in whose future and present is long only by position, its quantity in the perfect may be determined

[h] This is usually but most improperly called the perfect middle.

[i] Æsch. Suppl. 201. the antepenult of τεθυμενος is long, but it is as if τεθυμμενος, from θυνω furo.

[k] Has not Dr. Maltby fallen into an error in considering the penult in λελυκα short? See Introduction, p. 55.

by the quantity of the noun derived from it, if such can be found, as φρισσω, πεφρικα, φρικος, Phœniss. 1121.

κυπτω, κεκυφα, Cycl. 212. κυφος, Acharn. 703. } Long.

It has been observed, that when σ is inserted in the perfect passive before μαι the penult of the active is short, unless the penult of the present was in itself long, as πεφρασμαι from πεφρακα.

Note. If the penult is short or long independently of position, its quantity is retained also in the perfect, as βρυχω, βεβρυχα, Trach. 1075.

κραζω, κεκραγα, Ach. 805.
κριζω, κεκριγα, Av. 1520. } Long.

On the same principle,

κλινω, κεκλικα.
κρινω, κεκρικα[1].
τριβω, τετριφα, &c. } Long.

[1] Morell makes the penult in κεκρικα short, and it is left so in Dr. Maltby's edition.

6. The first aorist passive retains the quantity of the perfect, as ελυθην from λελυμαι, Thesm. 1207.

7. Verbs in αω make in general the penult of the future &c. long, as θοιναεω, Cyclops 546.

ποιναεω, Iph. Taur. 1397. } Long.
ευναεομαι, Helen 933.

But the exceptions are many;

σπαω, σπαεω, Eur. Elect. 578.
γελαω, γελαεω, Iph. Taur. 267.
σχαω, σχαεω, Troades 814. } Short.
σπαω, σπαεω, Androm. 442.
κλαω, κλαεω, ζ. 128.

8. The second aorist generally shortens the penult, as σφαττω, εσφαγην, Cyclops 128.

φευγω, εφυγον, Alcest. 197.
λειπω, ελιπον, Eur. Suppl. 8.
βαλλω, εβαλον, Cycl. 20.
στελλω, εσταλην, Cycl. 1011.

9. In verbs in μι the doubtful vowel follows the quantity of the penult in the corresponding person, number, tense, and mood of the verbs whose penult is not doubtful, as διδωμι,	ομνυμι,	Hippol. 710.	Long.

διδωσι,	δεικνυσι,	Tyr. 614.
διδομαι,	απολλυμαι,	Alcest. 167.	Short.
διδομεν,	δεικνυμεν,	Ion 1340.
διδοναι,	δεικνυναι,	Tyr. 1427.
	ἱσταναι,	Alcestis 1174.
διδοτω,	δεικνυτω,	Col. 1532.
διδοται,	ορνυται,	Col. 1320, &c.
εδιδοσαν,	ἱστασαν,	Heracl. 932.

Alpha penult is long

1. In the compounds of ανηρ, as στυγανωρ, Prom. 730. τρυσανωρ, Philoct. 208. though the penult of ανηρ in Attic writers is short.

2. In the termination of verbs before σι, as ισασι, Cyclops 90. ἑστηκασι, Cyclops 675.

Alpha penult is short in

1. All superlatives and ordinals, as φιλτατος, Eur. Elect. 572. πολεμιωτατος, Ion 608. φιλεστατος, Eurip. Suppl. 489. δεκατος, Agam. 39.

2. In all verbs in ανω and αμαι, as θιγγανω, Eur. Elect. 51. οφλισκανω, Ion 446. δυναμαι, Ran. 42. αγαμαι, Rhesus 444. εμπιπλαμαι, Ion 925.

Except ικανω, Soph. El. 1102. and κιχανω, P. 478. But in κιγχανω it is short, Hippol. 1434. Alcest. 495.

Note. Φθανω has the penult long in Homer; in Attic writers short.

3. In neuter nouns terminating in ανον, as κνωδαλον, Eurip. Suppl. 775. σπαργανον, Ion 32.

4. Nouns terminating in ανος and ανη generally follow the same rule, as θυσανος, δρεπανη, ουρανος. Except εανος, αιανος[1], καρβανος.

5. Nouns in αρος, as κυναρος. Except φλυαρος, ανιαρος.

Note. So also in αβος and αβη, αδος and αδη, αλος and αλη, αρος, αχος, &c. the α penult is generally short.

6. In adverbs in αδην, αδον, αδις, ακις, ακι, as εμβολαδην, πολλακις, ενωπαδις, φυλαδον, τοσσακι.

I is long

1. In nouns in ινη, as Ηρωινη, δωτινη, αξινη.

[1] Others read αιανος.

Except ειλαπινη, κεγχρινη, and material and possessive adjectives[m].

Note. I is long in some nouns ending in ια, as θυΐα, Vesp. 919. καλια, Hes. ε. 306. κονια, Lys. 471. ανια, Equit. 348. αικια, Eccles. 659. But Blomfield, Prom. Vinct. 93. doubts the correctness of the form. Consult Dr. Elmsley, Medea 608. In αικια at least the penult probably should be always the diphthong ει.

2. In the terminations of nouns in ιτης, ιτις, as πολιτης, see Index, [n]Δωματιτις, νηιτης, θαλαμιτης, θρανιτης, ζευγιτης, Αιγιαλιτις. Except perhaps some verbals, &c. as κριτης, κτιτης, κλιτης.

3. Comparatives in ιων, in Attic, as βελτιων, Ion 415. Εχθιων, Æsch. Suppl. 527. αισχιων, Plut. 590. ηδιων, Cyclops 251. κακιων, Ion 639. In Ionic it is short, as κλυκιων, A. 249.

4. Verbs in ιω generally, as κυλιω, μηνιω, αλιω, δηριω, κονιω. Except τιω, Ran. 1266.

5. Verbs in ινω, as ορινω, αγινω, κλινω. Τινω

[m] See rule for ιοτα short.

[n] See Blomfield's glossary, Agam. 941.

and φθινω make the penult long in Homer, in Attic writers short, Ion 450.

I is short

1. In adjectives possessive, material, and of time, in ινος, as ανθρωπινος, Vesp. 1179. ελατινος, Bacchæ 1023. αδαμαντινος, Prom. Ἡμερινος, Pac. 163. [o]μεσημβρινος, Ach. 40. Except in Homer [p]οπωρινος and ορθρινος, but of these there seems to be some doubt. See Maltby's note on οπωρινος.

2. In derivatives in ισις, ιτος, ικος, ιμος, ιχος, as βαδισις, Vesp. 1168. [q]αμαξιτος, βαδιστικος, Ran. 128. [r]θανασιμος, Ion 619. αρυστιχος, Vesp. 855.

Υ is long in

1. Verbs in υνω, υρω, υκω, υχω, as αισχυνω, Ion 344. βραδυνω, Col. 1628. αθυρω, Ion 53. ερυκω, Vesp. 599. τρυχω, Pac. 990.

[o] Callimachus has μεσημβρινος long, 5, 73.

[p] See λαρινος and ευρινος. See also note on μετοπωρινος. Index, p. 37.

[q] That αδηριτος, αμηνιτος, &c. are not exceptions, see Index.

[r] Except ιφθιμος.

2. Derivatives in υτος, υτης, υτις, υμα, υτωρ, from verbs in υω, as ιδρυμα, λυμα, μηνυτωρ, ατρυτος, μηνυτης, δακρυτος[s]. Except ερυμα. Some add as an exception ενδυμα. See Index. The highest authority suspects the reading. (See Elmsley on Bacchæ, 660.) The only nouns in μα preceded by a short penult, he says, are ερυμα, στομα, ονομα.

But if derived from certain verbs whose penult is not by nature long, υ is short in the termination, as in λυτος, δυτος, χυτος, θυτος, πλυτος, ρυτος, συτος, φυτος, as αλυτος, ενδυτος, προχυτος, βουθυτος, απλυτος, αλιρρυτος, επισσυτος, νεοφυτος.

Υ is short

1. In nouns whose terminations are in υνη, αβροσυνη, οδυνη, κορυνη. Except τορυνη, χελυνη.

Αισχυνη, ευθυνη, &c. from αισχυνω, ευθυνω, are no exceptions.

2. In nouns whose terminations are in υλος, υνος, υρος, as ερωτυλος, πισυνος, εχυρος. Except ισχυρος, and in Homer οΐζυρος; Attic writers make οιζυρος trisyllabic, and shorten the penult.

[s] Πολυδακρυτος has the penult common in Homer, P. 192. Ω. 620.

3. In verbals in υσις, as ανυσις, λυσις; unless the υ of the verb is by nature long, as μηνυσις from μηνυω.

The penult of verbs in υω (of which simple and compound there are at least 250) may be considered perhaps generally long: but no rule can be given with any certainty.

It must be observed that the point in which this manual mainly differs from every other of the kind, and which perhaps will be regarded as one of its chief recommendations, is the principle of establishing the quantity of every word by the authority of an Attic author. Recourse has never been had to any other, except where the Athenian dramatists have been searched in vain. Probably many instances of good evidence have escaped observation, but the principle has been uniformly adhered to.

Note on υλος. Ιεροσυλος borrows its penult from συλαω, αστυλος from στυλος, αλλοφυλος from φυλη, &c. they are therefore not exceptions.

[y] In the verb ἄνω the penult is common in Homer. Κ. 251. Σ. 473. In the Nioba of Æschylus it is short. See Blomfield on Choeph. 786. See also Brunck on Vesp. 869.

[z] See Heyne.

[a] Hence the antepenult of απιος, distant, is short, Col. 1685; whereas in Απιος, the name of a country, and Απις, the name of a man, the α is long, Col. 1303. Æsch. Suppl. 275—7. But Α. 270. the antepenult in the same word is short.

[a] Dr. Maltby assigns three meanings to this word in Homer, 1. a prayer, 2. a curse, 3. an object of abhorrence. In the first sense the penult is always long, in the second common, and in the third always short; δ. 767. ρ. 496. and I. 566. Σ. 100. He observes moreover, that the Tragedians use the word exclusively in the second sense, and make the penult short. The antepenult in αρατος is short in Ant. 983, whence probably (contrary to the advice of Leeds) we may regard the penult in καταρα as short. See καταρατος, Helen. 54.

[b] Compare Ion 315 and 335, with 349, where the penult is circumflexed. And see Viger, &c.

[c] See Ε. 31. Ᾱρες Ᾰρες βροτολοιγε μιαιφονε τειχεσιπλητα. Dr. Maltby refers us to a mode said to be adopted by Porson in solving this difficulty, by considering the first Αρες as a compound of Ω. Αρες.

Κρεμβαλον, Hermipp.

[y] The penult υ seems common; H. 141. it is short; Theoc. 25. 63. it is long. See κορυνη long.

[z] The antepenult in κρανιον is long. Hence also ορθοκρανον, πολυκρανον, τρικρανον, Soph. &c. though these perhaps are contracted from καρηνον, Bacch. 1015.

[a] So in all its derivatives and compounds, as ακρατης, &c. In ακρατος, unmixed, the penult is long, the word being derived from κεραω: so it is in κρατοβρως, the antepenult, which is compounded of κρας, κρατος, and βρωσκω.
